Gnarus Advisors expands its practice with new directors

ARLINGTON, Va. – Gnarus Advisors LLC announced today that it is expanding its practice with the addition of Timothy W. Devitt and Richard L. White as directors.

Both are leading experts in environmental and insurance claims consulting and broaden the expertise and skills available to clients of the analytic and expert services consulting firm.

Devitt is an experienced analyst of the technical and economic issues in environmental and hazardous material regulation and in the structure and operation of the environmental services industry. He is a registered professional engineer and a Diplomate of the American Academy of Environmental Engineers.

His management responsibilities have included the direction of multiple analyses of multibillion dollar environmental policy and litigation. He also has held senior corporate officer responsibilities in leading environmental consulting firms. Devitt was graduated from the University of California with a Bachelor of Science in Chemical Engineering.

White has more than two decades of experience consulting to private clients on a range of environmental and insurance coverage issues. White is an expert on the allocation of costs at hazardous waste sites, as well as the evaluation and analysis of liability, allocation and related issues faced by parties at Superfund sites. He served as a neutral allocation consultant, an allocation expert for contribution cases and he has directed a number of allocation engagements on behalf of clients.

He is a frequent contributor to environmental journals where he discusses a variety of cost allocation issues. White earned a Master of Public Policy degree from Harvard University.

Prior to joining Gnarus, both worked in the environment and insurance claims groups at LECG, PA Consulting Group and Putnam, Hayes & Bartlett, Inc.

“Tim and Rick both broaden and deepen the skills and experience Gnarus can offer to its clients,” said Stephen Sellick, founder and managing director of Gnarus Advisors.
